JACK M'CHORD.

Wins Declamatory Contest at Lexington—He Represents Central University.

On Friday night at Lexington, Ky. Jack M'Chord, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. M'Chord of Springfield, won the inter-collegiate declamatory contest for Kentucky. He represented Central University at Danville and is said to have acquitted himself in a manner which won the admiration of all who heard him. His subject was "The Run Mania." When it is considered that the other contestants were much older than Jack, and had been carefully trained, the compliment becomes greater. Those who have heard this young Springfield orator deliver an oration were not surprised when his success at Lexington was announced. He is a natural orator, his speech is fluent and his manner, while on the platform is unusually pleasing.

Jack made the first speech at Lexington, and notwithstanding that he was followed by four well-trained young men, who delivered strong addresses, he was unanimously declared the winner. When his youth is considered the winning of this honor becomes astonishing. Undoubtedly, and not many years hence—Jack M'Chord will be recognized as one of Kentucky's greatest orators. He is said to be as strong, not stronger, in debate.

The other contestants were: Kentucky University, Stanley Sanders; "Poets," Knott's "Delish Speech," State College, Wm. Bryant; "Gentleman the King," Georgetown College, E. Roy Becker; "Scene from Merchant of Venice," Kentucky Wesleyan College, J. B. Crocker; "Sunset's Reply to Death Sentence," The Judges were: W. C. Davis, of Versailles, J. J. Osborn, of Crutcher, and R. S. Dutton, of Paris.

The Great Explorer.

FRANCIS NARVES, the Norwegian explorer, now forty-five years of age, is noted for his wonderful physique, his courage, his powers of endurance, his scientific knowledge and his modesty. These qualities are due in part to his country and his early training. He had as one of his progenitors Hans Nansen, a bold navigator who lived 82 years ago. This Nansen wrote a handbook for Arctic navigators. When Francis was a boy his father, though a man in comfortable circumstances, trained him to endure privation and discipline with all luxuries.

Forced in a Jim Crow Car

At Lebanon Kentucky: Two suits against the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company each for $2,500 damages have been filed in the circuit court by the wives of well-known young men of this city. The plaintiffs are Mrs. Grace S. Wilhoit, wife of Mr. W. W. Wilhoit, and Mrs. Edna Cleaver, wife of Mr. Charlie B. Cleaver.

The petition alleges that they were at Louisville on the 10th day of November, and in the evening after purchasing tickets to this city, they were forced to enter the coach on the train provided for colored passengers. They had gone to the proper coach, but an employee refused to allow them to enter and compelled them to go into the coach provided exclusively for colored passengers after being in this car for some time they were permitted to go into the proper one, but were compelled to walk through the smoking car to do so.

He had been living in Louisville for the past few years, but a short time ago came out to Valley Hill to visit his daughter. Soon after his arrival he became ill and from the first his life was disfigured. His death was due to a general breaking down.

Mr. Lair was an excellent gentleman and was universally liked. He was a devout member of the Baptist church. He leaves a wife and seven children, to whom many friends extend sympathy. Burial occurred at Valley Hill this morning.

Jerome K. Jerome.

Jerome K. Jerome, the English Mark Twain, who has been on a lecture tour of America, had had a serious time of it in life. At fifteen he got employment as a clerk in a railway office. Then he went on the stage.

not because he expected to become a great actor, but because he wanted to do dramatic writing and needed to know stage technique. Life came to grief as a traveling actor, but while on the stage his mental experiences that served him in good stead later on when he took up humorous writing had the writing of plays. Mr. Jerome is forty-three years of age.

That Choke-bore Sewer.

The history of the Hertley sewer is about this. The part under Hertley's house, which is built in 21 inch sewer pipe, was put in when Mark's Green built Hertley's house.

It was employed to give grade for the sewer and did give grade from the curbstone on Main street to within about 25 feet of the alley in the rear of this property. As there was a three foot by three foot culvert under Main street at the time, I did venture to suggest that a 21 inch pipe was too small to carry properly the water, but my suggestion was passed unheeded and with contempt.

Four or five years later, when the sewer was continued to the branch, I was not even asked to give grade and the small matter of reducing a 21 inch bore to an 18 inch bore was passed over lightly and cheaply.

Last spring when Mayor Smock approached me about extending the sewer across Main street, we discussed the matter and I advised against reducing the capacity of the old culvert across Main Street.

I told him in substance that to continue the small sized sewer across Main street would only result in endangering the property north of the street without giving any relief to Hertley's. So we decided to put in the 24 inch pipe across Main street to replace the old three foot square box culvert. I say that I am responsible for the choke-bore conditions is unjust, ungenerous, and decidedly untrue to the history of this sewer. Respectfully, SIMMONS ROBERTS.

Notice to Creditors.

Mr. McClure will have charge of the books and desires a settlement while he is in town. After a reasonable time all accounts will be placed in the hands of an attorney.

Death of Mr. Price.

Mr. William C. Price, the aged father of Mr. C. L. Price, died at his home here last Thursday night of pneumonia. Mr. Price had only resided here about one year, but during that time had made many friends who will regret to learn of his death. The Barlistown Standard says:

Deceased was born and lived all his life, with the exception of about a year in Nelson county. He was a son of Joseph Price, Esq., a pioneer business man of Barlistown, and was widely known and highly esteemed. He had been a successful farmer and was a man of strictest integrity, and his numerous friends here and elsewhere will learn of his death with sorrow. About a year ago he moved to Springfield, and several weeks since returned here for a visit. At that time he was apparently enjoying the best of health and was lively and cheerful.

Mr. Price is survived by two sons, Messrs. C. L. Price, of Springfield, and Joseph Price, of Owensboro. His wife preceded him to the grave several months ago. Mr. Price is also survived by his sister, Mrs. Sarah Crutcher, of Nicholasville. He has numerous relatives in Nelson county, among them the editor of The Standard, who is a nephew.

The interment took place in St. Joseph's cemetery, near Bardonia, last Friday morning at 11 o'clock.

Card of Thanks.

I desire to thank the people of Springfield, who were so kind during the illness and death of my father. They will be remembered.

SPARROW

On last Monday evening quite a severe wind and rain storm visited this section of the country doing considerable damage to fencing and shoddy fodies. Wm. Quittier bought of Allen Breeding a nice two year old horse for $75.00. Wm. Smith has removed his family to Illinois where he expects to make his future home.

The sale of Wm. Smith on last Tuesday was well attended and everything sold for good prices. Ed. Taylor was in our midst one day last week, buying hogs.

Mr. Oscar Franklin, of Glasgow, was here Sunday afternoon. W. M. Crofield, Poorland Hahn and Dee Burgen are in Louisville this week selling their tobacco.

Miss Lucy Leather, a very old lady is quite ill with pneumonia. Mr. Noel Roberts and Miss Lucie Persons, of Glasgow, were united in matrimony last Thursday. Miss Jappie Barlow, of Mt. Sam, Yeager visited Bardonia Saturday and Sunday.

We notice that Hon. C. C. M'Chord is spoken of as a candidate for Governor in the next campaign. We think him the right man in the right place. Born to the wife of John Owens, a girl.

Death of Ed. Romaine.

On last Friday night Ed. Romaine died at the home of his father, G. W. Romaine. Deceased was about 55 years of age and was an industrious and respectable young man. About three years ago his mind became impaired and he was taken to Lakeland asylum, where he remained until about six weeks ago, when he was brought home in a precarious condition. At home his wants and needs were administered by kind and loving friends who hoped for his recovery, but the Divine Ruler saw fit to call him to a brighter land. His remains were laid to rest in the Fair Mount cemetery, on Sunday, in the presence of a large number of friends who join with the writer in extending their sympathy to the bereaved ones.

Bill Claybrooke's Bill.

A GOOD CITIZEN

Passed to His Reward—W. S. Clarkson Died As a Result of An Operation

W. S. Clarkson, one of Washington county's most highly honored and respected citizens, died at Elizabeth Hospital in Lebanon Monday evening January 22, 1906, at 5 o'clock, when he had undergone an operation, having had his right leg amputated above the knee. Blood poisoning, resulted, and his death followed. Mr. Clarkson had been suffering from diabetes for several months, and his system became poisoned; as a result cancerous growth of the leg developed, and the amputation was resorted to as a last effort to save life.

Mr. Clarkson would have been fifty years old in April, the greater part of his life having been spent in Washington county. He resided three miles from Springfield on the Lebanon place. Twelve or fifteen years ago Mr. Clarkson was married to Miss Ida Baker, of Illinois, who survives him. The deceased was a devout member of the Catholic church. There were few more popular or generally admired men than he. Jovial, kind and benevolent he was admired by hundreds of people, who mourn his death.

To the devoted wife many friends extend sincerest sympathy. Funeral services occurred this morning at St. Dominic's Catholic church.

PRAIRIER CREEK.

We have had no letter from this place for quite a while, and, as we have heard considerable complaint we will again try to give to the people some news. We are glad, indeed, to know that our letters are appreciated.

Mr. Will Kimberlin and wife were visiting their uncle, R. L. Arnold, Saturday and Sunday.

Misses Ollie Shewmaker and Mattie Martin were at the home of J. H. May's Saturday and Sunday.

There was a musical entertainment at the Misses Elice, Lillie and Mattie Whitehouse Saturday night.

The few bright days of last week made the farmers feel like they ought to be preparing for another crop.

Prospects were never brighter for small grain so far. Mr. Moss paid us a call last week and bought several crops of tobacco, paying fair prices; but would be glad if he would come back and buy the remainder so we could have some idea what to prepare for next season.

County Court was well represented by our citizens. Messrs. Wm. Sam, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Kimberlin spent the day with the family of G. H. Christerson Sunday.

Mr. L. L. Mayes and wife, of Stewart, were with the former's parents, J. H. Mayes, Saturday and Sunday.

Husband and Wife Dead.

We were very sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. E. R. Lester, which occurred last Friday, Jan. 19, 1906, aged about seventy-five years. She was one of the community's most loved and honored women, and her death is mourned by a large circle of friends. Her husband preceded her to the grave just ten days ago. Both Mr. and Mrs. Lester were at the point of death for several days, and when the devoted husband died it was thought that the wife could not survive but a few hours, and friends had prepared to bury both bodies in the same grave. Mr. and Mrs. Lester lived to see their children grow to manhood and womanhood, leaving a family of eleven. This good woman and man will be sorely missed by their church, being devoted members of the Deep Creek Baptist church. Those deaths make a sad item that occurred in the congregation of the Deep Creek church within the past year, nearly all of them being 70 years old and over.

Death of Mrs. Williamson.

Mrs. Sidney Williamson died at her home in the St. Rose neighborhood last Saturday of consumption, and the body was interred in the cemetery at that place Sunday. Mrs. Williamson was a prominent member of the Catholic church. She leaves a husband and three small children, to whom sympathy is extended.

GRACIOUS HOSPITALITY.

How to Make Your Guests Happy and Comfortable.

To give your hospitality graciously you must give it with a decidedly festive spirit, says a writer in the Chicago Tribune. A hostess is like a commander of fighting forces on whose courage, dash and coolness victory depends and to be a victorious entertainer you must not let your needs, worries, disappointments, headache or irritations show before your guests. Nothing so disarray and discomfite a guest, nothing so spoils all pleasure as to see that the head of affairs looks anxious, that she is blushing, frowning and beckoning softly at the servant to call her attention to mistake only that she is distracted from conversation, that she answers some member of the family sharply of that she is constantly apologizing and excusing.

While sitting in the capacity of hostess take thought in order that your manner will be the embodiment of placid good humor and serene confidence, mistakes or shortcomings in your careful arrangement to bring a worried look into your eyes and a frown to your brow. Don't let your company see that in the baking of cake, in the dusting of rooms, stirring of beds or arranging of flowers for their benefit you have worn yourself into a state of languid fatigue or nervous irritation. Better no cake baking if by so doing you incapacitate yourself for bringing into your parlor a clear head, a light heart and a ready laugh for your guests. They will like your gay good humor and simple refreshments twice as well as the most dainty dishes served up by a cross, tired, harassed hostess.

From the moment the first guest arrives it is gracious and necessary to appear at leisure and not only quite ready but delighted to devote all your attention to promoting conversation and diversion. Exercise all possible control of self and do not look preoccupied or anxious. At any time of your feelings do not let your company be unpleasantly aware that while your body is in the drawing room your thoughts are really in the kitchen. If you continue to look quite satisfied with or unconscious of a mistake in the serving the guests like good soldiers will not only take their cue from you, but they will far sooner forget and forgive than if you insist upon letting the accident dampen your spirit and if you make profuse excuses for the momentary inconvenience.

How to Do Many Useful Things.

Greasy dishes should be washed in tepid suds and rinsed in clean, scalding water. Very hot water applied at first hardens the grease and ends disservice it and the hot rinsing water leaves the dishes glossy and bright and easy to wipe.

Mess for roasting should not be washed but should be wiped with damp cloth.

The dishcloth in a well regulated house should be boiled with soap once or twice a week.

If before grinding the morning coffee the berries be heated for a few minutes, it will improve the coffee.

Both all tinware and frying pans are a big copper, with soda in the water periodically, then soon with sand.

When cooking soups, let them boil very gradually and the soup will not burst.

Stand pumpkin butter for two hours before frying. Beat it up again just before using.

To keep milk sweet for several days, add a teaspoonful of salt to every quart of milk.

How to Choose Proper Writing Paper. Society is very particular in respect to writing paper, and demands that paper of a good quality be used, either in white or cream or, at most, in very light blue or gray.

Never under any circumstances use ruled paper. This is intended only for little children and should be discarded just as soon as one has learned to write properly. Square envelopes are always in good state, and at present fashioners' anecdotes, the use of square envelopes for little letters that are addressed for friendly correspondence.

How to Treat Brittle Hair.

When the hair is very brittle it denotes some wrong about which a physician should be consulted. An expert help may be had in this shampooing up the scalp of an egg and tea drops of oil of sweet almond, a teaspoon of warm water (not hot) and a dash of lemon juice. Mix and keep in a glass stoppered bottle and use the first appearance of brittle hair on the scalp, neck, chest and back with it. It is a cleanser, relieving and soothing immediately.

How to Clean Varnish Stained Hands. To remove varnish stains from hands rub with a little methylated spirit, wipe off with a piece of rag or paper, then wash with soap and water.

How to Make Liquid Glass.

To make liquid glass put an ounce of borax in a pint of boiling water, add two ounces shellac and boil until shellac is dissolved.

"Five Points About My Coal."

First point. It's all coal and no slack. Second point. It makes a hot fire that lasts long. Third point. It's cheap and at my yard it's always will be. Fourth point. One ton is good, and more than a ton is better. Fifth point. THAT A HOLIDAY LOT OF OUR COAL will bring good cheer and happiness and drive away the blues. A word to the wise is sufficient.

FASHION HINTS.

FACTS AND FANCIES.

Remining Coats to Suit All Figures.

A word as to coats. The long coat may be severely tailored with long lines and of perfect proportions, or it may take the guise of the director's empire style in cut. The short jacket may have a rounded blouse like a man's morning coat, sitting low to the hips and cut away in front, or it may have a plaited or shirred bodice in place with a wide or narrow belt. Ribbons are to be used at libitum—and let us hope this will not depend

FRIBBLES OF FASHION.

The Fashionable New is Long and Shallow—New Child's Hat. Muffs are to be very long and not very deep. This shape is necessary on account of providing some protection for the arm when elbow sleeves are worn.

The newest and smartest type of tie is rather fanciful, with gracefully curved, torn, very much raised, off the band at one side and smoothed with feathers. But the hat tip at the neck with wings and plumes at the sides has by no means run its course, and the prettiest change. Fashions have dubbed the Long coats for fashionable at present, but when a little while in the afternoon, no matter what the material, should be washed with soap and water.

Gold and silver threads are much used, and the two are often combined, making a particularly rich effect on velvet and panne cloth.

Cared His Mother of Rheumatism.

"My mother has been a sufferer for many years from rheumatism," says W. H. Howard, of Husband, Pennsylvania. "At times she was unable to move at all, while at times walking was painful. I presented her with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and after a few applications she decided it was the most wonderful pain reliever she had ever tried. In fact, she is never without it now and is at times able to walk. An occasional application of Pain Balm keeps away the pain that she was formerly troubled with. By sale by J. H. Jordan."

CAPTIVATED BY CHOATE.

Ex-Ambassador's Diplomacy When He Was Menaced His Disabled Auto.

Score one more to the list of Joseph H. Choate's diplomatic triumphs, says a special dispatch from Great Barrington, Mass., to the New York World. It was accomplished while the ex-ambassador to the court of St. James was on the roadside this afternoon gazing upon his disabled automobile. His country place in Stockbridge, Mass., was several miles distant, naturally too far to walk. Night was creeping on apace.

Small boys were seen by ones and twos. They like not the rich man's auto, out of whose way they have to dodge. They have even been known to throw stones. There was a crippled wagon and the captain, sitting on the back, afforded a fair mark.

Disparaging remarks soon were heard from the gathering. "That auto is a disgrace," they said. "It is a disgrace to the name of Choate." "It is a disgrace to the name of Choate," they said. "It is a disgrace to the name of Choate," they said.

Mr. Choate moved about uneasily. Then he arose with all the grace which has been the admiration of distinguished statesmen.

"So ho boys," he said cheerily as signs of retreat were manifest. "I beg the attention of the little army from the street. He told incident after incident, the very best of the auto, and little boys came as big as hoppers. The address terminated with an appeal in behalf of good citizenship."

A loud cheer recognized the speaker, as Mr. Choate and the word was typically passed. The ex-ambassador, his audience completely won, once stopped.

CHANGE IN A NATIONAL SONG.

Why the Swiss Decided to Adopt a New Anthem.

It is not often that a nation changes its national hymn, says Herald's New-Yorker. The Swiss have, however, famously announced their intention of so doing and of adopting the less known Swiss psalm, or "Cantique Suisse" instead of the hitherto inviolable "Veni, Veni, Veni." The reason of this change is that the latter has always been referred to as the melody of "God Save the King," which is identical also with the German "Hail Dir to Siegenmars," and the Swiss are beginning to find this somewhat repulsive. Henceforth, therefore, they will change their tune to one which shall be theirs only and "indeed the melody accompanying the words 'Sur nos montagnes le soleil est' etc. of the Cantique Suisse is anything more inspiring than the old one."

It is said by a true son of the Alps, one, Zwysig, to whom a monument was erected on the Lake of the "Four Cantons" a few years ago. That the "Swiss" national anthem has been and is a small load on the people's affections is proved by the way the "new" one is readily accepted on all sides.

Huge Task. It was a huge task, to undertake the cure of such a bad case of kidney disease, as that of C. Collier, of Cherokee, Ia., but Electric Bitters did it. He writes: "My kidneys were so far gone, I could not sit on a chair without a cushion, and suffered from dreadful backache, headache, and depression. In Electric Bitters, however, I found a cure, and by them was restored to perfect health. I recommend this medicinal medicine to all with weak kidneys, liver or stomach. Guaranteed by C. J. #### Wants to See it Dammed

Louisville Herald: Congressman Dave Smith wants to dam Salt river. Many a public man, since first that jockey stream took a name, has been "damning" it. But the classic and irrefragable "Dave" wants no "n" in his dam. Twice has Congressman Smith's fragile Senatorial craft gone to wreck on the rocky ledges of the saline stream's treacherous waters. No more shallow water, therefore, for David. Deep water or nothing. Dam Salt creek, and the Congressman from the Fourth district can launch a heavy-draught vessel—a veritable ship of war—on its surface, equipped, in his estimation, to send armored cruiser Crepps I, or even defense ship "City Jemas" to the bottom.

To the nation, not to the State, does Congressman Smith appeal for the damming of Salt creek. Such a proposition submitted to Kentucky's General Assembly might be referred by Gov. Thorne to the Senate Committee on Religion and Morals, and as that committee never even says "dam," the bill had no hope there.

Speaker Lawrence, in the House, might hand it over to the Sinking Fund Committee. There it would go down to rise no more. Congress is, therefore, the place for the bill "to dam Salt creek." All Congressmen have heard of the stream. Some have gone up its current and pronounce it one of the nine rivers of hell. All will do anything feasible and reasonable to improve the river and make it safe for any ascending craft.

The trouble now is that most of the boats that go up Salt river never get down again. Dams—the "n's"—always religiously eliminated—may rise the volume of water in the tortuous stream's bed so that a vessel sent up for the health of its master may easily get back again. The Congressman from the Fourth Kentucky district is nothing if not magnanimous. He knows that next fall Congressional graft in large numbers will ascend Salt river, and wants to see it "dammed" first.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the Best Made

"In my opinion Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best made for colds," says Mrs. Cora Walker, of Porterville, California. There is no doubt about its being the best. No other will cure a cold so quickly. No other is so sure a preventer of pneumonia. No other is so pleasant and safe to take. There are good reasons why it should be preferred to any other. The fact is that few people are satisfied with any other after having once used this remedy. For sale by C. J. Haydon.

A Surprise Party.

A pleasant surprise party may be given to your stomach and liver by taking a medicine which will relieve their pain and discomfort, viz. Dr. King's New Life Pills. They are a most wonderful remedy, affording cure relief and cure for headache, dizziness and constipation. For sale by C. J. Haydon's drug store.

A Famous Piper.

There is no music so sweet to the ear of a Scotchman as that of the bagpipe, and the piper of pipes at Oban, Scotland, recently was a great occasion. It was presided over by the Duke of Argyll and one of the most conspicuous figures was Chamberlain's.

per J. McCall, who, as shown in the accompanying picture, was numerous medals awarded him in the many pipe playing contests in which he has been victorious. The bagpipe is an instrument which dates back into remote antiquity, and was introduced in Scotland through the Normans.

Ex-Senator Frank J. Cannon

According to Mrs. Frederick Schott, president of the National Mothers' Congress, former United States Senator Frank J. Cannon of Utah has been condemned to die by Mormonism. Ex-Senator Cannon is a benevolent and a man who has proved to be a martyr. Mrs. Schott is quoted as saying: "He came of the Mormons, and his father, a Mormon apostle, has disowned him because he is fighting for his state against the hierarchy." Frank J. Cannon is a son of George Q. Cannon, now forty-six years of age and is a graduate of Utah university. Soon after he left the university he made San Francisco his home and became a newspaper man. Subsequently he returned to Utah, entered politics and was elected United States senator.

The Diamond Cure.

The latest news from Paris, is that they have discovered a diamond cure for consumption. If you fear consumption or pneumonia, it will, however, be best for you to take that great remedy mentioned by W. T. McGee of Nashville, Tenn. I had a cough for fourteen years. Nothing helped me, until I took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which gave instant relief, and effected a permanent cure. Unequaled quick cure, for Throat and Lung Troubles. At C. J. Haydon's drug store, price 50c and $1.00, guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

Marshall Field.

Farmers Home Journal, Marshall Field, of Chicago, the prominent prince of the world, died in New York last Tuesday evening. Mr. Field was in some respects the most remarkable man of his generation. He was a farmer's son and got his education in a public school of Massachusetts, where he was born. When 17 years old he commenced work as a clerk in a country store, where he remained for four years. In 1856 he went to Chicago as a clerk in a wholesale dry goods store. In 1868, Field, with two associates, established the firm of Field, Palmer & Leithy. In 1871 Mr. Leithy withdrew and the firm has since been known as Marshall Field & Co. In 1881 the firm's sales amounted to $35,000,000. In 1905 to $120,000,000. At the time of his death Mr. Field's wealth was estimated at 100 to 200 million dollars. One of his rules was never to borrow and another was never give a note. Mr. Field was 70 years old at the time of his death and was reckoned to be the richest dry goods merchant in the world.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy Absolutely Harmless

Record Sale on Tobacco

Anderson News. Mr. C. E. Watts, one of Anderson county's well known farmers, one day last week, broke the record of prices for this year's market, for tobacco of all grades. He shipped and sold five hogheads of the weed at prices ranging from $8.40 to $12.75 per cwt., making an average of $14.75 per cwt. These are the highest prices received for any crop of tobacco sold in Louisville so far this year.

When you find a fowl afflicted with timber neck look for the cause, so that others may not be afflicted, writes a correspondent of Western Poultry Journal. It is not contagious. The fowl twists and twists its neck continually. A few drops of turpentine in a bottle of bread given at feeding time until relieved is the best remedy I know of. The turpentine kills the maggots in the throat of the fowl, which are the real cause of the disease. A small dose of castor oil helps to rid the system of the dead maggots and to restore the health of the fowl. The disease is easily cured if treated as above.

White Worms in Fowls. There should be no difficulty in diagnosing this trouble particularly when you find quantities of worms present in the excrement. Give a good wash food with which has been mixed a liberal amount of crushed garlic bulb. Carefully disinfect the droppings with a strong creosole solution, so that other members of the flock will not become infected. Afterward carefully clean up all excrement and burn it or bury it deeply.

Roup and Canker Cures. The days for roup and canker, both of which can be said mainly result from a cold, are coming. When roup has reached the stage when the odor from it is perceptible and when there are pronounced developed cases of canker it should not only mean complete isolation from the rest of the flock but the hatchet remedy should be applied without delay. —Foster.

COMING HOME.

'Home-coming week' in Kentucky next June will be a happy event. The old State will be full of ex-Kentuckians—with those 'old friends of ours' who have feathered their nests in other lands, and who, though apparently contented and happy with their adopted homes, in the language of an old slave time friend of ours, 'ain't yit dun lant how to fertig to hum my Ole Kentucky Home, fo' de good Lawd He put dat time er way down deep in dey harts w'en dey was bo'.

Some of these ex-Kentuckians who are coming home next June may have found their laurels in other climes; they may have seen their fertile acres dip into the horizons of the east and of the west, of the north and of the south; they may have seen their herds grow fat and numerous, and they may have heard the multitudes shouting their names from the house-tops; their mansions may be hid 'neath a wilderness of lilies in a land under skies that are blue, and their great gold-heaps may cast a mellow ray o'er it all a pretty picture; nobody doubts the inspiration. But the prettiest scene of all and the most inspiring is the scene around the old homestead down in Kentucky about the time the meadows are in bloom. It may be a cabin among the hills, or it may be a mansion in the valley; it may be a cottage in the hamlet or a house with many gables in the city—it matters not what, it matters not where, these old boys add these old girls, these 'fellow-citizens who moved away,' will find the dear home-place, with its myriads of trails and many by-ways, where the barefoot left its print in the dust so many years ago, the prettiest spot under God's blue sky. Here the sweet memories of a dear, loving mother, of a good and noble father, perhaps of a pretty little sister and a mischievous little brother and a thousand old friends, who are sleeping sleeping in vaults of clay eternally, will come back with a beautiful vividness, and the heart may be pained, but out upon the highway a stream of old-time friends will be passing—those old friends who could not be made to believe that God Almighty in building the globe had not placed all of His grandeur in Kentucky and you see Mary, an old sweetheart, of yore, and that time of sadness is crowded out of the heart, a thousand old tunes enter into the soul, and before the tear hardly has time roll away you are singing at the top of your voice.

The sun shines bright in an old Kentucky home. The summer days are gay, and, truly 'the days gone by are again the living present.'

A Mercer county woman is suing for divorce because her husband attacked her with a rake. Now the is question, hasn't a man got a right to give his wife a 'raking' over?

A COMMERCIAL CLUB.

There is no better town in Kentucky than Springfield, and we doubt very much whether there is another one so good a size considered. A drummer recently staid while in conversation with the editor of The Sun 'Springfield is the busiest town I have seen since I left Owensboro, and I have been in quite a number of large towns too. That is the exact language he used. But while it is admitted by all that Springfield is a live, busy town, it must also be admitted that we can make it better. A commercial club is needed. Why not organize one? Why not make an attempt to locate a factory or two at Springfield? Let's organize a commercial club.

About all that has been done by the Kentucky Legislature thus far is Joe Blackburn. We most sincerely hope that something else will be done.

Rough On The Doctor.

Paduach, Ky., January 17. Several Dr. J. M. Payne had recovered judgment against him for medical services.

Albert Pitsworth, a farmer, stopped the physician in the road near Lancaster, Ballard county, at the point of a pistol, compelling him to get out of his buggy, disrobe and wallow in a mud hole.

Payne protested at the treatment and was struck across the head. Several bones were broken. The doctor was compelled to sign a statement that he had sworn falsely at the trial and was threatened with instant death if he ever mentioned the affair to any one.

When Dr. Payne was allowed to drive on he hurried to Lancaster and notified the officers. Pitsworth was arrested near his home by Constable Joe Shelby and carried to Bandana, where he is being held pending a trial.

Dr. Payne is one of the foremost physicians of Ballard county, and is a brother of Stoker Payne, manager of the Lancaster Improvement Company, which owns the town site of Lancaster.

A latter report from Lancaster says that Dr. Payne also charges Pitsworth with taking his pocketbook, containing a small amount of money. Pitsworth comes from a good family, and was never in trouble before.

The devotion of the large, English Mastiff dog to the old family horse, belonging to Mr. and Mrs. C. C. McChord, which died last week, was astonishing. The dog and the horse were "roommates" and it was seldom that they ever separated. The affection of each for the other was shown in many ways; and when old Ike died last Monday the proud Mastiff mourned almost as humans mourn when death kisses down the eyelids of a loved one. The dog refused to leave the side of the horse, and, pillow his head on the dead animal's breast, he howled most mournfully. When his old friend was taken away the dog would not be consoled and his grief was pathetic. Mr. McChord found it necessary to send to the county and secure another horse, and while the dog seemed to get some comfort out of the companionship of the new horse, it could be easily seen that he was mourning for his old friend.

Walked From a Window

Lebanon Enterprise: An accident that came near resulting seriously occurred at the home of Mr. F. M. Edwards Tuesday night. During the latter part of the night Mrs. Edith Underwood, who was visiting at the home of Mr. Edwards, walked from a window in the second story of the building and fell to the ground. She was rendered unconscious by the fall and was not found until next morning about 5:30. She was removed to the hospital at once, where, upon investigation, it was found she had sustained a number of injuries, but none of serious character. Her hip was hurt, an ankle was sprained and she was otherwise bruised about the body.

Mrs. Underwood lost a son only a short time ago under unusually sad circumstances. She had left him in the afternoon at the Massing Widow's and Orphan's Home in Louisville in his usual health. That night she came to this city on a visit, and shortly after arriving here, she received a message that the boy had died suddenly of heart trouble.

Practically no damage was done.

MISS GRACE BARSTOW.

Only Woman Violin Maker in This Country If Not in World.

Miss Grace Barstow, of New York, Cal., the granddaughter of Judge A. L. Rhodes, a pioneer jurist of Santa Clara county, is winning fame as the maker of the violins. The house in which this bright young genius lives and makes her violins was bought around the year 1840 by Commodore Stockton and later was owned by Baron Biedelstein. It has always been a rendezvous for musicians.

To play the violin is the accomplishment of hundreds of young women, but few have constructed the beloved instrument from which such wonderful melodies can be obtained. Miss Barstow is the only woman violin maker in America, if not in the world, and, moreover, she is a noted performer on the instrument of her own making. She has not only accomplished wonders in her workshop, but has found time to perfect a specialty in which Paganini, Sarasate, Mendelssohn, Liszt, and Beethoven are conspicuous.

Possessing a fitting environment and intelligent sympathy, when her desire to make a violin became known, Miss Barstow's family gave her every encouragement and sent her to Germany, for the necessary work. Although six violins have been completed by her, each one a noted improvement on preceding efforts until the last instrument is said by experts to possess a delightful rich and brilliant tone. Miss Barstow has shown considerable inventive genius in constructing her violins, successfully experimenting with the native redwood as a base for, and will use more of that wood in her next violin. From present indications Miss Barstow is destined to become world famous.

An Ideal Sounder.

An ideal sounder is treated to one of the fabric artists of our age. One of the most fascinating selections to be had is in a pale shade of blue and white in a dainty pattern. A bolster of blue background, covered with clusters of delicate pink roses, accompanies it. Each wall is paneled separately. The native redwood is used for the baseboard to appear, across a base board, and below ceiling, down the next corner, and the other walls are paneled with the same. Little ceiling-clear white, the woodwork white, and the furniture should consist of simple and small pieces of mahogany. A designer who is noted for his original and sensible as well as artistic ideas declares that metal and brass beds are too showy, gaudy and cold for the founder and place his bed of approval on a small rug, a pair of mahogany, The dresser and dressing table of simple lines are the most showing, he says.

Where the room is adaptable a window seat is having and offers many possibilities. A rocker and two other chairs complete, and so satisfy the plan.

For window hangings choose ruffled net for street curtains, ruffled green-tinted tied back over this and an overhang of white and blue striped, cream. Having chosen this, try to find creations of striped pattern. Cut out one of these stripes and apply it to the overhang, forming a little border down the center and across the bottom. Hang straight to the window sill. If the window is wide add a fresh plaited border across the top, extending to the extreme edges of both curtains. Have a little border carried across the border of the drape. The furniture may hold the same design. Brass or metal fixtures correspond with white round glass globes, which preferably are plain. —Washington Star.

The Long Mirror.

"I hadn't the faintest idea my dress hung like that," said a woman in amazement the other day.

She caught a glimpse of herself in the long pier glass of a drug store. That glimpse showed a snag in her skirt that worried her.

"Haven't you a long mirror at home?" asked her friend.

"No, they're so expensive."

"My dear, they are the cheapest articles of furniture a woman can buy," was the reply. "Take my word for it. They seem expensive, but they aren't."

She could not deny a thousand things, but she could not deny a fact that she knew that those your full length is a necessity."

"My husband calls it vanity," put in the friend who is so sure of herself.

"It's exactly the opposite," was the reply. "A mirror that enables us to see ourselves as others see us takes us down a peg or two when we are as most puffed up. It shows the rip in the seam, the petticoat protruding beyond the skirt, the bulging of a collar, or the necktie badly fitted in the back, the buttons in the shirt waist that are unfastened, the hair that is rumpled and straggly, the curve in the shoulders that won't come off the unbecoming way of holding oneself—in a word, it holds up to one's vision the defects of one's appearance as a whole.

"A mirror mirror is of course just as necessary as a large one, and the two should supplement each other. Then you have a 'Frank' mirror that never deceives you."

"I'll get one," murmured the listener. "Get a plain, solid one. Put it in a well lighted part of the room, and you'll be astonished how often you'll get to it."

The other smiled.

"No, not from vanity, but necessity," Philadelphia Inquirer.

Gift and Chase.

For a luncheon table most dainty and effective idea may be carried out in gilt. The charm of it all is—everything gold and glittering crystal. The way to use a luncheon glass, gilt and decorated, no color in the designs. Let the candleholders be gilt glass, with gilt trimmings, or all glass or all gilt. Let the shades be of gilt metal, or work, with yellow linings. Yellow beaded fringes on the candle light to twinkling yellow beads. The candles, too, should be as near gold color as possible. Set the table with a lush cloth and doilies embroidered in some yellow silk design, flowers or conventional, and decorated with graceful tions of yellow flowers in season. Then come yellow ribbons and yellow this and that, with crystal everywhere. The idea is charming.

Benefits of Standing Up.

Women are supposed to have more masculine as time changes, and our manners change with the times, so it may not have attracted much notice how lately they have taken to stand talking, male fashion, in front of the fireplace after luncheon or dinner instead of sinking gracefully into the nearest comfortable chair. This is, however, no attempt at manliness, but simply the following out of the latest medical dictum, which advises us to stand for at least half an hour after each meal to do justice to the digestion. Food is better assimilated, so it seems that if we adopt this recumbent position.—London Outlook.

Double Chin Cure.

To get rid of double chin practice the following exercises: Drop the chin to the chest and, keeping the face to the front, roll the head slowly and in regular circles, first to the right and then to the left. From the erect position twist the head to the right as far as possible, and then to the left. From the erect position twist the head to the right as far as possible, and then to the left. From the erect position twist the head to the right as far as possible, and then to the left.

Escaloped Cheese.

Escaloped cheese is a great favorite in our family. Cut slices of bread from a stale loaf, trim the crusts, and, if desired, have the slices, butter a baking dish and lay the slices in, alternating them with layers of grated cheese mixed with salt and paprika, pour a cupful of milk over all dot with bits of butter and bake for twenty minutes or half an hour in a moderate oven. A richer dish is secured by heating one or two eggs and adding to the milk, before pouring it over the slices.

Pertaining a Room.

One of the most delicate ways of pertaining a room is to fill a white mottled bowl or other dish with boiling water and then pour over it a teaspoonful of oil of lavender so used will make a room delightfully fresh at the cost of a fraction of a cent.

Clear Complexion.

The woman who strives for a clear complexion will not eat paprika, fried or greasy food of any description or any. When the face lacks color, eat plenty of underdone beef and take a small dose of iron after each meal. When the face is too highly colored these things should be of course be especially avoided.

Color Schemes in Dress.

"Color schemes" are always popular and in good taste. They are for all seasons, and particularly suitable for a girl in school. If her hat and dress shades are not only harmonious but match in color, with perhaps, different shades, her appearance is neat and girlish.

The Eyes.

Going to bed early will make the eyes deeper in hue. The woman who goes to bed early will make the eyes deeper in hue. The woman who goes to bed early will make the eyes deeper in hue.

Leather boots and shoes may be softened and kept from cracking by being rubbed well with castor oil. They should not be used for about twelve hours afterward.

Put a few grains of rice in the salt-cellar to keep the salt from raking. As the cellar is shaken the rice will keep the salt moving.

A nail driven through an empty spool makes a good substitute for a clothes peg in a wardrobe.

No highway is quite complete without a Roman chair or a low, broad sofa.

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMIES.

How Housekeepers Can Profit by the Following Suggestions.

Every kitchen sink and every bath-tub should be provided with a wash dish. Soap reduced to a jelly by leaving it in water is a trifling example of waterwaste. No soap dish, by the way, is worthy the name unless it is properly drained by perforations at the bottom or by other means, says the New York Journal.

Strange as it may appear, a coal oil lamp needs ventilation as much as a soap dish needs a drain. Coal kept in a place almost airtight loses much of its gas and is consequently inefficient to burn.

A point not to be forgotten is that potato peelings, well dried, are as useful as orange peel treated the same way for lighting a fire and making it burn up quickly. Both save firewood.

Milk should never be left uncovered since the "filthy germ" will taint it while in making pastry a marble slab is preferable to a board for rolling out the paste. Nowadays, too, china rollers are to be used, and, while for this purpose are better than the wooden ones, and there are glass ones followed out for the introduction of less.

If when bought the new leather on the soles is stood for a few days in-lined oil before using. The oil should first be boiled and, when the shoes are taken out they should be allowed to dry for a few days. This treatment also prevents the objectionable cracking.

Where there are boys it is wise to have the heels and knees of new stockings carefully darned before taking them into use. This prevents a tearing substance for the wear and tear of those parts.

The first thing to do with gloves and rubber-soled garments of any description is to sew the buttons on more securely. Buttons are rarely well sewed on anything that is really made.

To need a hole in a canvasette stick firmly on the inside a piece of black cloth plaster. This is not so noticeable as a darn.

It is wise to purchase towels rather large. Launderies charge no more for washing large articles than small ones, and large towels do not wear out so rapidly.

How to Cure Dyspepsia.

To cure dyspepsia by means of exercise try punching a bag, says the Chicago Press. Suspend it at a convenient height from the floor to permit of punching it vigorously, after the manner of a prize fighter. You must wear gloves to protect your knuckles. Twist the body around in both directions from the waist in a good exercise for you. Leaning forward and then backward as far as possible, also to the right and to the left, is good practice. Interlock the thumbs and, with the knees straight, bend forward until the tips of the fingers touch the floor. Rise to an upright position with the arms extended. Breathe, during your dyspepsia, these athletics should expand your chest, put roses in your cheeks and grace and vigor in every movement. Don't say that you are too weak and breathless to take exercise. This is a delusion. The weakness and the quick and short respiration arise from want of exercise. The less exercise one takes the less one is fitted for it and the more one needs it. Nerves will become disordered, the blood thick and sluggish, and the muscles will grow flaccid without exercise.

How to Make Cucumber Lotions.

The following cucumber lotion, which can be made at home, will keep for almost any length of time if put in tightly sealed bottles, says the Detroit News-Tribune. It is an excellent cosmetic for whitening and softening the skin. It agrees with some skins better than any of the creams and can be used during the day for cleansing the skin: Express juice of cucumbers, one-half pint; deodorized alcohol, one and a half ounces; oil of benne, three and a quarter ounces; shaving cream, one dram; blanched almonds, one and three-quarter drams. Put the almonds in a sieve and dip in boiling water. This makes it easy to blend them in the mortar and while stirring work in the alcohol in which the oil of benne and the shaving cream have been dissolved.
